ABSTRACT

This directory provides a map of New England's higher education landscape. The state-by-state institutional listings offer information on tuition and room and board charges, enrollment data, and endowment values at each of the 270 institutions listed. Each entry begins with a narrative about the institution and concludes with a summary of admissions information that outlines application deadlines, fees, required admissions examinations, special admissions programs, and the telephone numbers and e-mail addresses of admissions offices. All of the information is derived from the New England Board of Higher Education's Annual Survey of New England Colleges & Universities. The directory contains information about the New England Board of Higher Education and a message from the Board's president. Two articles discuss with "The New England Board of Higher Education's Tuition-Saving Regional Student Program" and "Financial Aid Opportunities for New England Students." The state-by-state listings make up the body of this directory issue. (SLD)

Editor's Memo

Cutting-edge research universities, small rural campuses steeped in the liberal arts tradition, bustling community colleges giving adults and recent high schools grads the latest skills, vital state colleges grown out of the normal schools of yesteryear … where else but in New England can one find so many choices in higher education?

CONNECTION's 2003 Directory of New England Colleges & Universities provides a map of the region's higher education landscape. The state-by-state institutional listings offer a wealth of information including tuition and room and board charges; enrollment data; and endowment values at each of the 270 institutions listed. Each entry begins with a helpful narrative and concludes with a summary of admissions information detailing application deadlines, fees, required admissions examinations, special admissions programs and phone numbers and email addresses of admissions offices.

All institutional information in this directory is derived from the New England Board of Higher Education's Annual Survey of New England Colleges & Universities conducted in the late summer and fall of 2002. In addition to providing key information for college-bound students and their families, each listing also contains the names and titles of key campus administrators. No wonder CONNECTION's readership of policymakers, journalists, legislators, higher education leaders and business CEOs regard the directory as an invaluable "business to business" reference tool.

While New England offers a world of higher education opportunities, paying for college can be intimidating and difficult. Wendy A. Lindsay, director of NEBHE's Regional Student Program (RSP), provides readers with a straightforward guide to the financial aid process that includes useful tips and an up-to-date listing of Internet resources for information on paying for college. Thousands of students turn to NEBHE's own tuition-reduction program for savings on college costs. The Regional Student Program, detailed on pages 18-22 is the nation's foremost interstate tuition-reduction program. The RSP provides New England residents with thousands of dollars in tuition breaks every year.

This year, NEBHE encourages you to stay connected by joining us as a Friend of NEBHE. Friends of NEBHE receive four quarterly issues of CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION, plus CONNECTION's Annual Directory, timely email alerts on critical issues and trends, advance notice of NEBHE conferences. For more information, see our special advertisement inside or visit us at www.nebhe.org/connection.html.

As always, a special word of thanks to the advertisers who know that CONNECTION is an excellent platform to reach the region's "opinion leaders," students and higher education professionals. NEBHE, a nonprofit organization, relies on CONNECTION advertisers, subscribers and Friends of NEBHE to help produce quality publications that foster and underscore the critical connection between education and success for our region and our citizens.

New England's Higher Education Marketplace

Robert A. Weygand

For nearly two decades, the New England Board of Higher Education has been pleased to publish the region's leading annual directory of colleges and universities. Like its predecessors, we believe this 2003 directory will be an invaluable resource for a variety of New Englanders ranging from college-bound students to chief executives.

As you examine this year's publication, you'll see some familiar facts and statistics as well as some new kinds of information about New England's higher education institutions.

What you will not see on the surface are the dramatic changes we have made in how we gather and compile the data. Gone are the cumbersome paper surveys, mass mailings and labor-intensive transcription of the old days. We've gone totally electronic and, in doing so, we have made the process more efficient and the information more accurate.

The improvements mark a significant move on our part to be more effective in our marketplace. They also offer a reminder of the profound change taking place among the chief characters in this story: New England's 270 private and public, two-year and four-year higher-education institutions. They, too, are thinking quite a bit these days about the marketplace—a word that until recently was seldom heard in academic circles and almost never heard in the context of providing a quality education.

Our systems of higher education financing, curriculum development, infrastructure and reputation-building are all being transformed by market forces and methods. With diminishing financial resources, a poor economy and growing competition from all types of for-profit outfits, many New England colleges and universities are looking to the business world for partners to share their financial burden and expand their educational offerings.

Some such partnerships offer higher-education institutions a highly effective tool to pursue their missions. Others raise difficult questions, most notably: are students being educated for life's challenges or merely trained for jobs?

These are among the topics explored regularly in CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION and through forums such as NEBHE's recent conference series on "Building Human Capital." They are pressing matters, for how colleges and universities work with others to ensure New England's economic well-being, while staying true to their missions, will determine the number and type of institutions listed in future issues of this directory—and the very nature of higher education.

The decisions we made to improve this directory were easy, compared with those facing colleges and universities in the competitive marketplace. We urge all New England campuses to make sure the tough decisions that they make benefit not only their bottom lines, but more importantly, the region's students.

Our systems of higher education financing, curriculum development, infrastructure and reputation-building are all being transformed by market forces and methods.

About the New England Board of Higher Education

History

Nearly half a century ago, six visionary New England governors realized that New England's future hopes rested with higher education. Against a backdrop of deep economic uncertainty and exploding college enrollments fueled by the G.I. Bill, these governors formed the New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) and committed their states to the shared pursuit of excellence. Between 1954 and 1957, all six of the region's state legislatures approved the establishment of the New England Board of Higher Education and the U.S. Congress authorized the interstate agreement.

Much has changed since the 1950s. New technologies have transformed New England's workplaces, schools and homes. The clang of the machine shop has given way to the click of the mouse. New populations have enriched the region's economy and culture. And a college education has become a prerequisite of upward mobility—a pathway to economic success and civic engagement. But a few things remain constant. First, New England's economy and quality of life still depend on the quality and diversity of the region's extraordinary higher education resources. Second, six states still can do more together than one can do alone. And third, higher education is still the future of New England.

NEBHE Mission

The central mission of the New England Board of Higher Education has remained essentially unchanged over nearly a half-century:

The mission of the New England Board of Higher Education is to promote greater educational opportunities and services for the residents of New England.

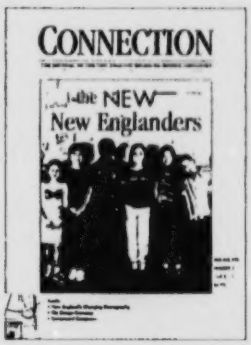
NEBHE Programs

Take a Big Bite... out of College Tuition

The Regional Student Program (RSP) provides New England residents with major tuition savings at out-of-state public colleges and universities within New England. Established in 1957, the RSP is available to students who pursue specialized degree programs not offered by their home-state public institutions. In academic year 2001-2002, the RSP saved more than 7,600 New Englanders an average of $5,500 each on their annual tuition bills, for a total one-year savings of more than $42 million.

The RSP also saves the region's taxpayers millions of dollars because states avoid the cost of starting and maintaining academic programs that are already offered by their neighbors through the RSP. It's a common market for higher education.

Critical Analysis ... Controversial Issues ... Tomorrow's News ... Get the CONNECTION?



CONNECTION: THE JOURNAL OF THE NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION is America's only regional magazine on higher education and economic development. Each quarter, CONNECTION offers expert analysis and hard-hitting commentaries on issues from faculty diversity to sustainable campus architecture. CONNECTION'S Directory of New England Colleges & Universities is published once each year as a special bonus issue.

Six states can do more together than one can do alone.

Teaching Teachers ... to Teach about Technologies

The New England Technology Education Partnership (NETEP) prepares teachers to teach math, science and technology using hands-on curricula in cutting-edge fields such as photonics and telecommunications. The partnership, supported by the National Science Foundation, unites educators and professionals to improve education and grow New England's technology workforce.

The New England Board of Higher Education also ...

- Sponsors Science and Engineering Academic Support Networks to encourage underrepresented minority students to pursue college degrees and careers in New England.
- Provides New England students with environmental work experiences at New England businesses, government agencies and nonprofit organizations through its Environmental Internship Program.
- Collects and disseminates vital data and analysis of higher education trends through special reports and the Annual Student Vacancy Survey.

- Convenes opinion leaders and practitioners to share best practices and forge collaborative strategies to address higher education challenges facing New England.

NEBHE Goals

- Engage and assist leaders in the assessment, development and implementation of sound education policies of regional significance.
- Promote policies, programs and best practices to assist the states in implementing important, regional higher education policies.
- Promote regional cooperation and programs that encourage the efficient use and sharing of educational resources.
- Provide leadership to strengthen the relationship between higher education and the economic well-being of New England.

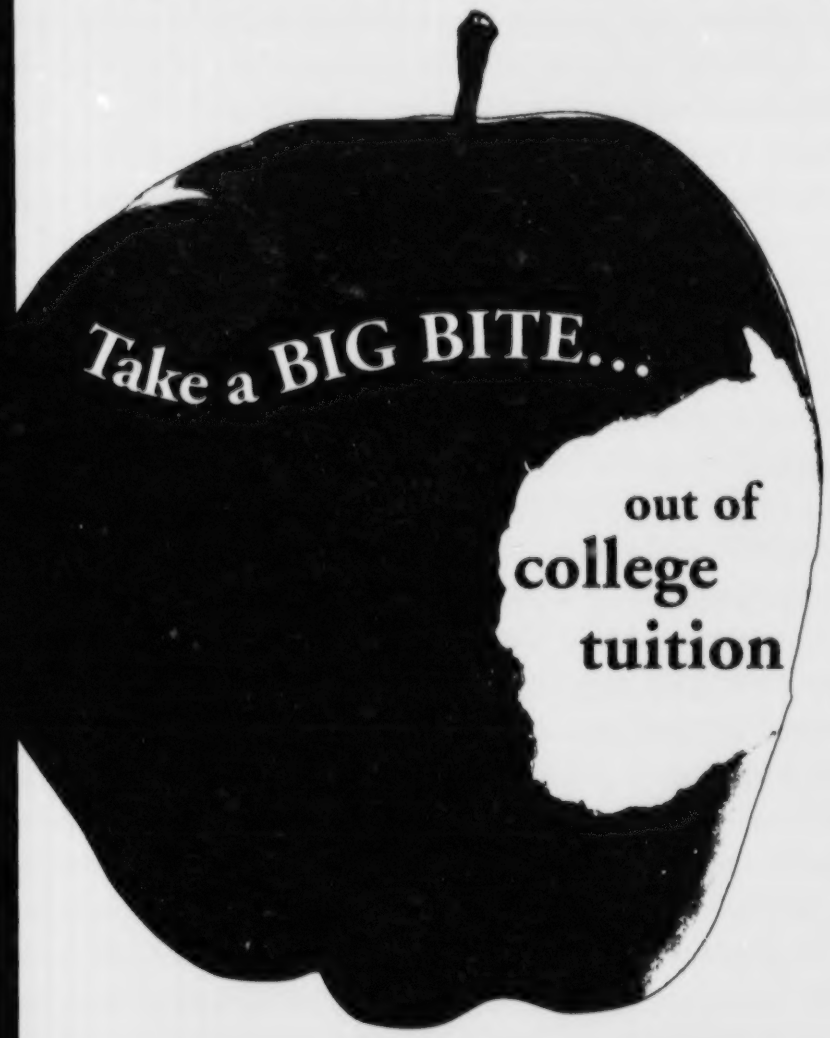
NEW ENGLAND BOARD OF HIGHER EDUCATION'S

REGIONAL STUDENT PROGRAM

(the Apple program)



The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program (RSP) provides New England residents with a tuition break when they study certain majors — not available at public colleges in their home state — at public colleges and universities in other New England states.

All 78 public colleges and universities in New England participate in the RSP, offering more than 700 academic programs at reduced tuition to out-of-state New England residents.

RHODE ISLAND COLLEGE

Programs are available through the RSP at all academic levels: associate, bachelor's, master's, certificate of advanced graduate study, doctoral and first-professional. The majors are approved each year by the participating institutions and listed in the annual RSP catalog.

The RSP tuition break

Students pay in-state tuition when they attend a public college or university in their home state. Students pay out-of-state tuition when they attend a public college in another state. Students pay RSP tuition when they study a major that is not offered by a public college in their home state, but is offered by a public college in another New England state through the RSP. The RSP tuition rate reflects a significant break on a college's out-of-state tuition rate. RSP tuition is usually 150 percent of the college's in-state tuition.

In academic year 2001-02, more than 7,600 New England students saved an average of $5,500 each on their annual tuition bills through the RSP, for a total one-year savings of more than $42 million.

Applying for RSP status

After checking the RSP catalog to identify approved majors, a prospective RSP student applies directly to the college(s) offering the major through the RSP. No additional application is required. In addition to the majors listed in the RSP catalog, some programs are available through the RSP to students who live closer to an out-of-state college than an in-state college (this "Nearer-to-Legal-Residence" Option is explained in catalog).

The RSP Catalog

A searchable version of the RSP Apple Book catalog is posted online at www.nebhe.org. Printed catalogs are available at high school guidance offices, public colleges and public libraries throughout New England and from the New England Board of Higher Education.

Financial Aid Resources for New England College Students

Meeting College Costs Using Financial Aid

Wendy A. Lindsay

In academic year 2001-02, the average cost of attending a four-year private college in the United States was more than $26,000 a year, according to the College Board. The average cost of attending a four-year public college is about $12,000 a year. Multiply that by four, and the pricetag exceeds $100,000 for a private college education and about half that for a public college education.

Understandably, prospective college students and their families often find these costs daunting, and most turn to financial aid to help foot the bill.

In fact, at least half of all students receive financial aid to help pay for college.

Financial aid is available from a variety of sources, including the federal government, state government agencies (listed on page 27), colleges themselves, private foundations, community organizations, corporations, and the military.

What are students and families expected to pay? That depends on their current financial situation and ability to help pay the cost of a college education. Students and families provide relevant information on the financial aid applications required by the colleges, who in turn decide what a family is expected to contribute.*

For starters, students and their parents need to complete the federal government's FAFSA (Free Application for Federal Student Aid) to be considered for any financial aid, including loans.

In addition to the FAFSA, colleges usually require students to complete a college financial aid application form. Some colleges also require their applicants to complete the College Board's application, called Profile, for awarding non-federal student aid funds.

The FAFSA asks students and their parents to report income from the previous calendar year and provide other information such as number of children in college and amount of money in bank accounts. The federal government calculates the Expected Family Contribution (EFC) and reports this information to the colleges selected by the student. A Student Aid Report is also sent to the student.

Colleges often use their own criteria to determine a student's EFC based on information from the applications they require. The colleges identify the student's eligibility for financial aid by subtracting the EFC from the Cost of Attendance.

What is the Cost of Attendance? The colleges determine the estimated full cost of attendance for their students, which includes not only tuition, fees, room and board, or the costs of off-campus living, but also books and supplies, transportation and personal expenses.

Students who are independent report only their own income and assets (and their spouse's, if married). Students are considered independent if one of the following applies: They were born before Jan. 1, 1979 (for 2002-03 academic year), are married, enrolled in a graduate program (beyond bachelor's degree), have legal dependent(s), are orphans or wards of the court or are veterans of the U.S. Armed Forces.*

Types of Financial Aid

There are three basic types of financial aid: (1) scholarships and grants, (2) federal work-study and (3) loans.

Scholarships and Grants

Scholarships and grants are gift aid, because, unlike loans, they are not paid back. They are awarded based on financial need and other criteria, such as achievement, religious affiliation, ethnicity, memberships, hobbies or special interests.

Scholarships and grants are offered by the federal government, state financial aid agencies, colleges, private businesses, foundations and community organizations, towns, high schools, veterans' groups, etc. Information is available from colleges, high school guidance office, the public library, community organizations, scholarship directories and online resources (see page 27).

Federal Pell Grants and Supplemental Educational Opportunity Grants are awarded by the colleges to students who are identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA.

Individual states have grant and scholarship programs for their residents. (See detailed list for New England states on page 27.)

Federal Work-Study Program

Work-study money is awarded by the colleges to students identified as eligible by the federal government, based on information provided in the FAFSA. The students earn the award amount through part-time employment provided or arranged by the college.

Loans for Students and Parents

Loans, which account for about 60 percent of all financial aid, can be taken out by students, parents or both. Students do not have to pay back their loans until after leaving college; however, parents must begin making payments soon after the loan is disbursed.

Free Information

Free financial aid information is readily available from several sources including the federal government, state financial aid agencies (see list starting on page 27), college financial aid offices, high school guidance counselors, public libraries and the Internet (see page 26).

Meet deadlines

Students need to check with the college financial aid office to find out which application forms are required and what the deadlines are. Financial aid applications must be completed on time, and early is better. Note: Students can apply for financial aid before they have been accepted by the colleges where they have applied for admission.

The FAFSA should be completed as soon as possible after January 1. Students and families can choose to estimate their income for the previous year and verify it later, instead of delaying their application until after filing taxes.

File the FAFSA electronically at www.ed.gov/studentaid/apply.html

Federal Perkins Loans are very low-interest loans administered by the college for students with exceptional financial need.

Federal Stafford Loans for Students

Through the federal Stafford Loan Program, students can borrow up to a maximum loan amount each year they are enrolled and pay back the loan after leaving college. Loans may be subsidized (the interest is forgiven while the student is enrolled) or unsubsidized (the interest accrues while the student is enrolled). If the college participates as a lender in the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, students apply through the college's financial aid office. Otherwise, students apply to a bank, credit union or other lender that participates in the Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL) program.

Federal PLUS Loans for Parents

Parents who take out federal PLUS loans begin payments within 60 days after the loan has been disbursed. If the college participates as a lender in the William D. Ford Federal Direct Loan Program, parents apply through the college's financial aid office. Otherwise, parents apply to a bank, credit union or other lender that participates in the Federal Family Education Loans (FFEL) program.

Other loan programs are available from state financing authorities, as well as from private lenders and some colleges.

Armed Forces

The U.S. Armed Forces offer various college financing options to students who meet eligibility requirements. Information is available at the U.S. military's career guide site: www.myfuture.com. Options include the Reserve Officer Training Corps (ROTC) Program, which helps enrollees pay for some college expenses and the Montgomery G.I. Bill, which provides financial support to those who attend college after serving in the military.

Other ways to meet college costs

- Use a tuition payment plan.
- Get an out-of-state tuition break: The New England Board of Higher Education's Regional Student Program provides New England residents with a tuition break when they study certain majors—not available at public colleges in their home state—at public colleges and universities in other New England states. Eligibility is explained in the annual RSP catalog, which can be viewed online at www.nebhe.org and is available from NEBHE at 617.357.9620.
- Participate in community service: Americorps is a national program that allows college-age students to earn money for education in return for national service. Information is available from Corporation for National Service at 1.800.94.ACORPS and www.cns.gov.
- Attend college half-time or part-time and take longer to complete a degree, but still remain eligible for some financial aid (attending at least half-time is required for federal Stafford and Plus loan programs).
- Earn a bachelor's degree by attending a lower-cost, two-year community college then transfering to a four-year college.
- Commute to college instead of living on campus.
- Work for a company or organization that provides tuition assistance.

1. The higher education institutions listed in CONNECTION's 2003 DIRECTORY OF NEW ENGLAND COLLEGES & UNIVERSITIES are authorized to grant academic degrees at certificate, associate, bachelor's, master's or doctoral levels. Colleges and universities are listed alphabetically by state with public institutions appearing first, followed by independent institutions. A special section listing law and medical schools follows the state-by-state sections.

   Independent institutions listed are nonprofit except for the following for-profit institutions: Briarwood College, Gibbs College, Goodwin College and Paier College of Art Inc. in Connecticut; Andover College, Beal College and Mid-State College in Maine; Arthur D. Little Management Education Institute, Katharine Gibbs School and New England Institute of Art and Communications in Massachusetts; Hesser College and McIntosh College in New Hampshire; and New England Culinary Institute in Vermont. Information in the institutional listings is derived from a New England Board of Higher Education (NEBHE) survey conducted in the summer of 2002.

2. Institutions generally provide their main telephone and fax numbers and the institution's homepage on the World Wide Web. (For telephone numbers of admissions offices, see the section of each listing titled "Admissions Information.")

3. Brief descriptions note the year the institution was founded, types of programs offered and degrees awarded.

4. The NEBHE survey asks campuses to provide the names and titles of senior campus officers. In general, the campus officers listed include presidents, academic deans, chief financial officers and undergraduate admissions and financial aid officers.

5. Most New England colleges and universities are accredited by the New England Association of Schools and Colleges (NEASC), a regional accrediting body based in Bedford, Mass. NEASC accreditation indicates that a college has purposes appropriate to higher education, has the necessary resources to achieve its stated purposes through educational programs, is substantially doing so, and gives reasonable evidence that it will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. Accreditation by NEASC applies to the institution as a whole; therefore it is not a guarantee of the quality of every course offered. NE indicates that an institution is accredited by NEASC. NE cand indicates that the institution is a candidate for accreditation by NEASC.

   Some New England institutions and/or their individual programs are accredited by various national accrediting bodies. Specialized indicates that an institution or one or more of its academic programs carries such accreditation. Interested students should contact the institution directly to receive detailed information about such accreditation.

In the case of the New England law and medical schools additional accreditation is indicated as follows:

AALS Association of American Law Schools

ABA American Bar Association

AMA-AAMA American Medical Association-American Association of Medical Assistants

AMA-CAHEA American Medical Association-Committee on Allied Health Education and Accreditation

AOA American Osteopathic Association

LCME Liaison Committee on Medical Education

6. In a semester system, the academic year is divided into two equal units. In a trimester system, the year is divided into three units. In a quarter system, the year is divided into four units. Other calendar systems include 4-1-4, which features two terms of four months each and a one-month intersession intended for experimental or intensive study and variations such as 4-4-1 or 4-1-4-1.

7. An institution's student body is classified as men for men only, women for women only or coed for men and women.

8. Tuition/Fees refers to annual tuition and mandatory fees for a typical undergraduate (except in the case of institutions that enroll only graduate students). For public institutions, in-state tuition and mandatory fees are listed first; followed by out-of-state tuition and mandatory fees. RSP Tuition refers to reduced tuition paid at public institutions by students participating in NEBHE's Regional Student Program (see pages 18-22 for more information). Regular out-of-state fees apply. Tuition and fees are current for the 2002-2003 academic year. Fees may include the cost of health insurance required by some institutions if students are not covered by comparable health insurance and may vary according to program of study. The figures listed for Tuition/Fees do not include room and board charges unless otherwise indicated.

9. Room and Board Charge refers to average annual charges for students living on campus and participating in a standard meal plan (unless otherwise noted) during the 2002-2003 academic year.

10. Housing Type is categorized as: m – housing for men; w – housing for women; c – coed housing; and f – housing for families or married students.

11. Listing shows the 2002 market value of institutional endowment, unless otherwise indicated. Endowments under $1 million are not reported. In most cases, the values of endowments listed in the law and medical school section are also included in the affiliated institution's total endowment in the state-by-state listings.

12. Listing shows the total number of full-time employees (excluding faculty) and part-time employees (excluding faculty), in most cases as of Jan. 1, 2002.

13. Listings shows the total number of full-time faculty and part-time faculty, in most cases as of Jan. 1 2002.

14. Figure refers to the total library collection. In most cases, reported collections include printed volumes, micro-units, electronic titles, paper and electronic serials and periodicals.

15. Enrollment figures are for the fall 2001 term. The figures are reported by institutions based on a headcount of full- and part-time degree enrollment in undergraduate and graduate degree programs and full- and part-time non-degree enrollment.

16. Admissions Information is presented in a brief narrative and may include: examinations required by institutions as part of the admissions process or for placement after admission; application deadlines and fees for first year students; information regarding special admissions programs and related deadlines. The admissions office telephone number, email address and website address are also provided.

The Test of English as a Foreign Language (TOEFL) exam is not generally listed; however most institutions require the exam of students for whom English is a second language.

Generally listed admissions examinations are indicated as follows:

ACT American College Testing Program

ACT/ASSETT American College Testing Program ASSETT Test

DAT Dental Aptitude Test

GRE Graduate Records Examination

LSAT Law School Admissions Test

MAT Miller Analogies Test

MCAT Medical College Admissions Test

SATI Scholastic Aptitude Reasoning Test (formerly the SAT)

SATII Scholastic Aptitude Subject Tests (formerly known as the Achievement Tests, institutions may require students submit scores from specific subject tests)

Look to the Future
See What's Coming in CONNECTION

WHAT BUSINESS WANTS FROM HIGHER EDUCATION - WINTER 2003

CONNECTION explores what business wants from higher education ... and what higher education wants from business. How are academics and businesses working together to make a real difference in local schools, workforce development and regional economic well-being? How do they overcome barriers to cooperation? What does the future hold for business-higher education partnerships?

TRENDS AND INDICATORS IN HIGHER EDUCATION, 2003 - SPRING 2003

CONNECTION features the latest data on New England college enrollment, student migration, student aid and more ... along with hard-hitting expert commentary and analysis.

PAYING FOR COLLEGE - SUMMER 2003

CONNECTION explores the ever-rising cost of a college education, the state of public investment in today's student, innovative ways to pay for college and the battle brewing over merit- versus need-based student aid.

EMOTIONAL RESCUE: THE STRESSES ON TODAY'S COLLEGE STUDENTS - FALL 2003

CONNECTION looks at campus phenomena ranging from binge drinking to suicide and asks whether the social and emotional under-preparation of college students may pose as much threat to the region's economic and social well-being as any academic shortcomings.

A Great Location, A Great Education and a Great Start!

The graduate & undergraduate university courses you need. Nearby, right on Long Island Sound or at the UB Stamford Campus.

The University of Bridgeport offers a lot more than a convenient local campus on Connecticut's attractive shoreline. In addition to a broad range of degrees and continuing education programs, UB offers a surprising array of unique career development choices not available elsewhere in the state, or even the Northeast.

Equally important, UB offers a remarkable student/professor ratio of just 12 to 1. In addition, a recent survey by the U.S. Department of Education hailed UB as Connecticut's safest residential campus. UB, a great location, a great education and a great start. Find out more:

USNH

Serving Students Today by Providing Educational Programs and Services that Prepare Them for Tomorrow.....

In 1963 the New Hampshire General Court established the University System of New Hampshire to provide a well-coordinated system of public higher education offering liberal undergraduate education encompassing the major branches of learning, emphasizing our cultural heritage, and cultivating the skills of reasoning and communication. The University System strives to assure the availability of appropriate higher educational opportunities to all New Hampshire people. Today high-quality programs and services provided by the faculty and staff of our institutions are serving more New Hampshire citizens than ever before. One out of every three citizens—more than 400,000 people—are directly impacted by USNH institutions and their programs.

While it is impossible to meet the need of every individual, we strive to broaden educational opportunities for the citizens of New Hampshire through cooperation and collaboration with others.

We are proud of our many partnerships with the New Hampshire College and University Council, New Hampshire Technical Education system, New Hampshire Postsecondary Education Commission, New Hampshire State Board of Education, New Hampshire School Boards Association, Leadership New Hampshire, New Hampshire Industrial Research Center, New Hampshire Business and Industry Association, and dozens of other institutions and organizations here in the Granite State.

We are equally proud to be partners with the New England Board of Higher Education, New England Association of Schools and Colleges, New England Land-Grant Universities, and other regional organizations helping to expand educational horizons for New Hampshire people.

Kid.
It's not about the ball.
It's not about the shoes.
It's not about the clock,
or the competition.
It's about your future.
And between you, me and the teacher,
you're going to pass that math class.
STAY INTENSE ABOUT YOUR KID'S EDUCATION. Keep in touch with the teacher. Visit the school. And help your child on the path to success.

VERMONT LAW SCHOOL

Clinical/Experiential Programs

VLS's experiential programs provide students with practicum-based learning experiences that prepare them for the actual practice of law.

Clinic for Environmental Law and Policy. Building upon the success of our Environmental Law Center, this new clinic is in the forefront of important environmental issues.

Environmental Semester in Washington. Students work under national leaders in environmental law and policy. Recent placements have included the Congressional Budget Office, the Dept. of Justice, and top law firms and nonprofit organizations.

General Practice Program. Students learn by doing in this comprehensive program, with classes that are structured to operate as law firms. Professors assume the role of senior partners, providing instruction and supervision for their student "associates."

Legislation Clinic. The law school's close proximity to Vermont's capital, Montpelier, allows students to serve as interns in the General Assembly.

Semester in Practice. Selected students are individually matched with experienced practitioners or judges for intensive field work.

South Royalton Legal Clinic. Students are guided by experienced, full-time attorneys as they represent clients in a variety of actual civil cases.

One of a handful of independent, private law schools in the United States, Vermont Law School offers a traditional Juris Doctor (J.D.) curriculum that emphasizes the public-serving role of lawyers, a Master of Studies in Environmental Law (M.S.E.L.) degree for lawyers and non-lawyers alike, and a post-J.D. degree, the Master of Laws in Environmental Law (LL.M.)
